COL. ROOSEVELT'S ONLY DANGER IS BLOOD POISONING

Roosevelt Shows Little Pain in Breathing, But His Injury Is Much Worse Than Supposed.

Patient Not Out of Danger, But Surgeons Will Not Operate—All Visitors Are Barred—Special Detail of Police Guard Gates of Mercy Hospital Where Wounded Statesman Lies.

Mercy Hospital, Chicago, Oct. 16.—Early this morning Roosevelt's pulse had dropped to 84. His temperature remained at 98.8 and his respiration 18. He was still sleeping soundly. The fact that Colonel Roosevelt's finely regulated nervous system does not prevent him from his regular sleep is accepted as an extremely favorable indication.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—With a leaden slug as big as the end of a man's finger buried two inches deep in his chest, Theodore Roosevelt is menaced only by the danger of blood poisoning.

A veritable armor belt built of overcoat, coat, waistcoat, 100 sheets of paper and a gun metal spectacle case turned aside the bullet fired by John Schrank, which spat against Colonel Roosevelt's fourth rib on the right side. There, unless symptoms of poisoning set in, he will carry it for the remainder of his life.

While the colonel is comfortable, he is by no means out of danger. The very objects which deflected the bullet may have tipped its slightly mushroomed point with infection that will make itself known within twenty-four hours.

Every precaution has been taken to guard against this contingency, even to the injection of an anti-lockjaw serum.

The colonel has been told bluntly that his campaign is at an end, at least for two weeks. He has been ordered to see but few people, and to do no work.

Colone Taking Orders.

And, while chafing under the necessity of handing over the leadership of the Progressive campaign to others, he realizes his peril, and for the first time, perhaps, in his career is taking orders.

Colonel Roosevelt awoke at 10:30 and called for hot water and a mirror. Sitting in bed, he shaved himself carefully.

"I couldn't go to sleep for the night without doing that," he remarked. "It is habit."

His nurse afterward gave the colonel an alcohol bath.

Colonel Roosevelt then started to read several numbers of the Outlook, saying he would read himself to sleep. He was much refreshed by his short nap.

His temperature, taken at 10:30 o'clock, showed a slight drop to nearly normal. It read 98.8, while 98.6 is normal. His pulse, however, had increased from 86 at six o'clock, to 88 at 10:30.

Attended by the foremost surgeons of the west—Dr. John B. Murphy and Dr. Arthur D. Bevan—with his own physician, Dr. Scully B. Terrell, Colonel Roosevelt is resting in two great light rooms in the Mercy hospital, at the corner of Twenty-sixth street and Calumet avenue. Here he was taken when his special train brought him from Milwaukee after the tragedy.

For the colonel it was a dull day. Most of the time he has been cheerful, although toward night he grew a trifle fretful and impatient of the restraint that was placed upon him.

All day long telegrams of sympathy from men in high places poured into the sick room. And Colonel Roosevelt, refusing to let anyone but himself answer them, sat propped up on pillows and dictated to stenographer E. E. Martin, the man who overpowered his assailant before there was a chance for a second shot.

Taft Sends Message.

One of these messages was from President Taft, another from Senator La Follette. The colonel seemed deeply touched by both of them.

Senator Beveridge arrived and was the only one permitted to talk to the

Mrs. Roosevelt and Children With Colonel—Analysis of the Bullets Show They Are Not Poisoned.

Mrs. Roosevelt and the children are with the Colonel.

Confident that the Cubs would go in today and win the necessary game to give them the city championship over the White Sox, the Dixon promoters of the Cub-Dixon game, set for tomorrow afternoon, went right ahead with their arrangements for the big game and have not considered that a postponement of the game will be necessary. It is believed here that Callahan has not a pitcher who can stop the Cubs today, inasmuch as the Big Reel has been disposed of, and therefore it is regarded as practically certain that Chance's great baseball machine will be seen at the Athletic park tomorrow when they will play Charles Miller's assembled bunch of all-stars.

Effect is Sox Win.

However, should the Sox win today's game it will necessitate a postponement of the Dixon game, and patrons will be able by the score of the Cubs-Sox game, published elsewhere in this paper, to ascertain definitely if the Cubs will show here. If they are ahead it assures their appearance here. If the Sox have won the game will have to be played later; therefore there will be nothing doing in Dixon.

Should Be Dandy Game.

The fans however were content to believe as the promoters do that the Cubs would surely win today, and therefore everyone in town was busy today making arrangements to go to the game, which will commence promptly at 2 o'clock.

Every store and bank in the city will be closed from 1:30 until 4:30 o'clock and the business section of the city will be deserted during the hours of the contest. For everyone in the city is determined to help boost for a new ball park, for which purpose the game has been arranged.

Proceeds for Good Purpose.

The promoters state that every cent that is made at the game will be devoted to the purchase of the grand stand at Athletic park and toward securing a new ball park for Dixon. Since the Illinois Northern Utilities company has announced that it was about to build a big steam power station on Athletic park, the citizens of Dixon have been conjecturing and speculating as to where Dixon's sporting events would be held in the future.

Thirty-five business men of the city were approached on the proposition of getting the Cubs here for a benefit game, the project to start a fund for providing a new park. Each of these men agreed to give $5 to insure the expense in case weather conditions prevented the game and each one of them also agreed that whatever was made on the game should be devoted to a new ball park. No one in Dixon, therefore, will make a cent out of the game, and the Sox is to be turned into a big booster day, the purpose of which is to perpetuate the national pastime in this city.

PROGRESSIVES ARE OUT OF STATE FIGHT SAY REPUBLICANS

G. O. P. STATE ORGANIZATION OPENS CAMPAIGN ON DEMOCRATS.

DENEEN IS STUMPING CHICAGO

Prominent Democrat Admits That a Democratic Administration Would Break This State If It Were Not for Civil Service and Would Be Very Detrimental Anyway.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Satisfied that the Bull Moose state ticket has been eliminated as a serious factor in the Illinois situation, the republican state committee directed its attention today to Edward F. Dunne and the democratic state ticket.

"A vote for Funk is a vote for Dunne," was the statement of State Chairman Roy O. West, "and what is now necessary is to inform the voters of the state just what they may expect if by chance and chance only, they permit Mr. Dunne to become the governor of Illinois."

Gov. Deneen will take the stump in Cook county tonight, speaking in every section of the city in the widest-spread campaign which has been undertaken by the republican organization in Chicago. He is prepared, with data and figures, to expose the record of Mr. Dunne as mayor of Chicago, and present to the voters the flat question as to whether they wish to turn over the state government with its ramifying departments, involving business ability and administration of the highest order to Mr. Dunne and the coterie that was responsible for the police and departmental scandals which were developed in the unsuccessful campaign for re-election made by Mr. Dunne in 1907.

A conspicuous Chicago democrat who does not disavow his hope that Gov. Deneen will be re-elected and is openly opposed to the election of Dunne, said today: "The democratic party cannot afford to take the responsibility of electing the state ticket which has been nominated. It would be a civic tragedy to turn over the offices which are now thoroughly organized and in excellent business condition into the hands of a set of candidates who have promised all the appointive places a dozen times over, and who would wreck the state government were it not for the civil service law, providing they win out in November."

This authority directed attention to the fact that in his efforts to win a re-election as mayor, Mr. Dunne's administration had been connected with the expose of the police department, its levies upon vice and the connivance between the Dunne appointees and the law breakers, evidence of which was developed in the legal proceedings which terminated in the indictment of Dunne's chief of police, James M. Collins, the destruction of the police records, and the ultimate removal from the police department of the men who handled the job.

"Why doesn't Mr. Dunne have something to say about this chapter in his political history?" was the question which came today from the republican state headquarters.

Gov. Deneen came to Chicago today to register for the election, and to prepare for the far-reaching campaign which is to be instituted tomorrow night in the First and Fifth wards.

NEW CANDY SHOP OPENS TOMORROW

The Athenian Candy Shop, of which James Clemon is proprietor, will open at noon tomorrow in the new Loftus building on Galena avenue.

Mr. H. J. Metropoulos, the manager, is an experienced man in this line of work and will present to the people of Dixon a place that is not only beautiful, but in that it is different from anything in this line in the city. The Marquette orchestra will furnish music on Saturday and Sunday evenings.

GUY L. PARK DIED IN FREEMONT, NEB.

FORMER PHYSICAL DIRECTOR AT DIXON Y. M. C. A. STRUCKEN SUDDENLY.

MARRIED LESS THAN 2 MONTHS

Recent Marriage to Miss Helen Putterbaugh of Dixon Makes Affair Doubtly Sad—Abscess of Brain the Cause of Death.

Mrs. George C. Dixon this morning received a telegram announcing the death of her brother-in-law, Guy L. Park, former physical director of the Dixon Y. M. C. A., at his home in Freemont, Neb., last night, death resulting from abscess of the brain. No further particulars were received in the message and Mrs. Dixon left at noon today to attend the funeral and to be with her sister, who is a bride of less than two months. It is thought that burial will take place at St. Joseph, Mo., Mr. Park's former home.

The news of this estimable young man's death was a shock to many friends here, for during his residence in Dixon he formed a wide circle of friends. He came to this city about a year ago, together with Sec. E. T. Bailey, and assisted greatly in building up the local institution. During his residence here he met his wife, who was Miss Helen L. Putterbaugh and they were married in this city Aug. 20, less than two months ago. Immediately after their wedding they went to Freemont, where Mr. Park had accepted the position of physical director of the Y. M. C. A. The first news that he was seriously ill was received last evening and the message announcing his death was received this morning.

He was born at St. Joseph, Mo., July 24, 1888. He was engaged in railroad work there when Mr. Bailey interested him in Y. M. C. A. work, and from that time he was an enthusiastic worker in his chosen profession. He made many friends in Dixon who will tender their sincere sympathy to the stricken bride and relatives.

DECIDE LOCAL CASES.

AMBOY YOUNG MAN VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

WM. McMAHON LOST BOTH ARMS UNDER I. C. FREIGHT TRAIN.

WAS DRAGGED QUARTER OF MILE

Youth, Who Supported Mother and Sister, Is Brakeman and Crawled Under Car to Make Repairs When Train Started—May Be Fatal.

Amboy, Oct. 16.—Special to Telegraph—Wm. McMahon of this city, aged 25, the only support of a widowed mother and several sisters, lost both arms and suffered other severe injuries in a distressing accident in the Illinois Central railroad yards here at 8:45 a. m. today.

The young man, employed as a brakeman on a through southbound freight in charge of Conductor Burns and Engineer Smith, was walking alongside his train while it stood in the yards here when he noticed "a broken brakeman under one of the cars. He crawled under to remove it when the train started out of the yards."

Dragged Quarter of a Mile.

The victim of the horrible accident, trapped under the moving cars, called loudly for help but his cries were unheard by anyone in position to bring the train to a stop, and the young man was dragged from the old Main street crossing to the iron bridge at the south end of the yards, a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile.

George Fleuhr, superintendent at the electric light plant, heard the boy's cries for help as the train passed the power station, but was powerless to aid him. However, he summoned aid and started after the train.

Both Arms Amputated.

Near the bridge they found the mangled victim. His right arm was cut off above the elbow and the left arm was amputated below the elbow. In addition he received a bad gash on the forehead and was injured about the chest. He was taken to the Amboy hospital where his awful injuries were attended to.

The accident has caused a feeling of profound sorrow here as the lad was one of the most popular young men in the city. He was industrious and hard working and because of his attentions to his mother and sister, earned the appreciation of all who knew him.

Dr. Sullivan, who is in attendance announced this morning that the young man's injuries may prove fatal.

LEE HART EXPIRED TODAY AT HOSPITAL

PROMINENT FARMER PASSED AWAY TODAY—DEATH BRINGS GRIEF TO MANY.

Lee Hart, one of the prominent farmers residing on the Daysville road, died at the Katherine Shaw Be thea hospital at 11:05 a. m. today, from gall stones. Mr. Hart had not been in good health for several weeks, but his condition was not serious until this week. The surgeons performed an autopsy this afternoon to determine exactly the nature of Mr. Hart's ailment. Obituary and funeral notice will be published later. Mr. Hart was universally liked and his death brings sorrow to many persons.

NO GAME HERE TOMORROW

There will be no ball game in Dixon tomorrow. Contrary to all expectations the White Sox turned on the Cubs in their game at Chicago this afternoon, batted Reulbach, Cheney and Smith off the slab in the eighth inning, scoring four runs, enough to win by a 7 to 5 score. Announcement of the date of the Dixon-Cubs game will be made later.

For some time past she has been a valued employee at the Dixon telephone office, where she will be greatly missed, as she was a general favorite with all. Mr. Hintz is a highly esteemed young man, possessing many friends who wish him much happiness.

Phidian Art Club.

As the autumn season advances, club and social life awaken into activity. The Phidian Art club, one of the oldest and most comprehensive clubs of the city, held its second bi-monthly meeting at the home of Miss Woodbridge and Miss Hitchcock on East Second street, yesterday afternoon. The program of last year, England, is continued this year. The following was yesterday's program:

Sir Joshua Reynolds and the Royal Academy—Mrs. M. J. Cleary. The Two Great Satirists of the 18th Century—Mrs. C. H. McKenney. Vocal Solo—

a. (Winter—Sapio (The Four Leaf Clover—Coombs b. (Pleading—Sobeski (The Boat Song—Sobeski Mrs. Lew Edwards

Mrs. Edwards, who opened the program with her first number needs no introduction to a Dixon audience as her strong, clear voice and pleasing manner are already well known here.

Mrs. M. J. Cleary then gave her paper on Sir Joshua Reynolds in her usual forceful way. Reynolds was the sixth child of a large and poor family. Through the generosity of friends he studied in Italy for two years, becoming quite deaf through a cold caught in the Vatican. He grew to be one of the greatest of portrait painters, and was made the first president of the Royal Academy being knighted at the time by the king. He died in 1792 and was buried in St. Paul's, London. Some of his greatest portraits are Capt. Hamilton, The Reading Boy, and The Age of Innocence.

This very able paper was followed by Mrs. McKenney, her subject being The Two Great Satirists of the 18th Century, those two being Dean Swift and Wm. Hogarth, the former a satirist of the pen and the latter of the brush.

Swift was a delicate, precocious child. He could read the Bible at three years of age, but was ill tempered, coarse, arrogant and dictatorial. He was made Dean of St. Patrick's Cathedral in Ireland and espoused that country's cause in various controversies with England. His greatest satire is Gulliver's Travels. He was tall, strong and well set up, stern, haughty and never known to laugh. With all these faults Jonathan Swift is an honor to Ireland. He died in 1745 and was buried in St. Patrick's Cathedral, from whose pulpit he had preached many an able sermon. An epitaph of his own composition marks his grave.

Hogarth was a stout, bustling little man of meagre education, but gifted with common sense and shrewdness. He served seven years apprenticeship and finally fell into good hands, in that he became a rich man's protegee, finally marrying the latter's daughter. His greatest pictures are Marriage a la Mode; The Rake's Progress; Industry and Idleness. He died at the age of 67.

The paper on Swift was an unusually difficult one to write, even for those used to writing and studying for club programs, but Mrs. McKenney did ample justice to her subject, and received hearty applause. As this completed the program the meeting adjourned.

Tripoli Home Life.

There is a vivid picture of home life in Tripoli in Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd's recent volume: "Another day I went to a house of quite different social order, where a poor woman with a crooked spine had asked to see the foreigner. She was sewing at a little machine low on the floor, turned by hand, like those used by Malays, her knees higher than her head—but that was apparently a favorite attitude of both sexes. Flat on the floor lay an old woman sound asleep, merely a neighbor in for a while to take this surprising means of promoting social hilarity. But she wore a good deal of jewelry, was artistically tattooed and, upon waking, showed strong, short white teeth in a friendly smile. The poor little deformed woman seemed pathetically glad to see us and began to talk at once of the coming eclipse, of her fear that it might injure her and that she should not dare to go to the roof to see it; also asking me to use my influence to render it as harmless as possible."

Chaperons for the Young.

Queen Mary is said to have deplored the easy fashion in which mothers have allowed their girls to run about at their own sweet will during the last few seasons. Anyhow the chaperon has been reinstated at girl and boy dances. Of course, girl and boy dances, so called, are for those already out in the world; but the new "flapper dances" are quite a different thing and are given for girls of fourteen to sixteen and their friends. These entertainments are run on the lines that have made them so popular in Paris. Governesses and even nurses hover about if mothers, aunts and their friends are not on the spot. The dances are usually afternoon affairs, and besides the "two step" and "three step" the gavotte and minuet are popular.—The Gentlewoman.

Fighting Tuberculosis.

The Swiss people are determined to do everything possible to stamp out consumption. This summer more children than ever before were taken to "holiday camps," or "holiday colonies," which are generally in some mountain district, at heights of about four or five thousand feet. In the Jura, above the Lake of Biel, there are some of these holiday colonies nearly every mile. Holiday colonies and camps, of course, exist in other districts of Switzerland, but the Jura is one of the favorite places for them, one reason doubtless being that so few foreign tourists go there. The children, who sleep in tents, spend almost the whole time out of doors.

Great Painter's Studio.

Cecilia Beaux, whom most people credit with being the best known woman portrait painter in the world, has built herself a remarkable house at Gloucester, Mass. It's such a wonderful house that people write it up and print pictures of it and of the equally interesting garden which runs down to the sea. And yet no one ever seems to think of writing up an equally important place, Miss Beaux's city studio. She paints all winter long in a high place overlooking Gramercy park. Having the top apartment, her view is unobstructed. There is no ocean to be sure, but it is a splendid studio.—New York Press.

Banana Flour Popular.

Banana flour specially prepared as a tonic food is making its appearance in Paris. Within a recent period this fruit was but little used in France, and even now its consumption is limited. However, measures are being taken to increase the importation, and it is said that seventy vessels were recently fitted up for bringing the fruit to Europe. Banana flour has a much more extended use in England than on the continent, but efforts are now made to introduce it in France, owing to its great nutritious value.

A near-sighted old lady at a dinner party in Sterling recently had for a companion on her right a very bald-headed old man. While talking to the gentleman on her left she dropped her napkin unconsciously. But the bald-headed man saw it drop and stooping to pick it up, touched her arm slightly. The old lady turned around, shook her head slightly, and very politely said, loud enough for all at the table to hear: "No me/ou, thank you."

Which recalls another thing that happened in Sterling last week, the truth of which is vouched for by a Dixon traveling man who was in the store in question at the time. While this Dixon man was waiting for the proprietor of the store a man came in and purchased a couple of night shirts. "What was them there things that feller bought?" asked a "terling man" who was standing nearby. "Night shirts, can I sell you one or two?" answered the boss. "Naup," said the man. "I reckon I don't sit around much nights."

CHAPTER IV.

"The Chief Wants to See You."

Elinor Holcomb, tall, graceful, gray-eyed, stood framed between crimson portieres like a Velesquez portrait. Her refinement differed from Mrs. Missioner's climatically, but, despite the polar opposite of their coloring, there was a resemblance between them. Mrs. Missioner's eyes turned to her apologetically.

"I regret to disturb you so late, Elinor," she said, "but these gentlemen insist on seeing you. I suppose you were sleeping?"

"I was dozing, I fear," smiled the girl. "I had been reading." She held a book in her hand.

"The necklace with the Maharajah diamond is gone," the widow explained, "and paste jewels have been put in their place. This is Detective Donnelly, of the Central Office, and this is Detective—ah—"

"Carson, ma'am," said Donnelly. "I'm sure I'm very glad to see Mr. Donnelly and Mr. Carson, since there has been a robbery," said Elinor easily. She moved softly to the center of the room and stood looking at the Headquarters men. "Are you sure the real diamonds are gone?"

Mrs. Missioner made a gesture to ward the safe and indicated the heap of false gems on the table.

"Is it likely," sneered Griswold, "that whoever put the paste stones there would neglect to take the real ones? I see you read De Maupassant, Miss Holcomb. Stories like 'The Necklace' don't happen."

Elinor laughed as she turned the book in her hand so the others might see the name of the great Frenchman on the cover.

"Yet the way the young couple spoiled their lives to pay for the false necklace reads plausibly," she retorted. "You are growing more observant, Mr. Griswold."

Sands was overcome by his growing impatience.

"If the detectives have any questions to put to Miss Holcomb, I suggest—" gest that they waste no time," he said. "There can't be much to ask." "No, there isn't much," Mr. Sands, retorted the large Central Office man. "I'd just like to ask the young lady who she thinks took the diamonds."

"I Will Try to Answer."

Elinor looked amazed.

"How should I know?" she queried, a little irritated by the man's abruptness. "This is the first I've heard of the robbery."

"Then maybe you'll explain, miss, why you didn't come in with the other—huh!—that is, why you didn't appear before?"

"I have told you I was reading in my room," she replied. "I knew nothing of the robbery, nor even of Mrs. Missioner's return from the opera, until the housekeeper knocked on my door with the information Mrs. Missioner wished to see me in the library."

"I really regard this as wholly unnecessary," Mr. Donnelly, said the widow, with slow insistence. "Miss Holcomb is not only my secretary, but my trusted friend. Her elder sister was in my class at Smith. I have known the Holcombs many years."

"You may think you know them, ma'am," Donnelly persisted, "but my experience is you never can tell who you know in a case like this. Me and my side-partner have been sent here to recover your jewels and locate the thief, and if you don't let us do it in our own way, we can't be held responsible."

Elinor then did something that was unaccountable to the widow who thought she knew her so well, and which rather startled Sands. She turned to little Miss March and, laying her head on the young girl's shoulder, wept unrestrainedly. Dorothy, patting her shoulder, stood looking helplessly at Mrs. Missioner.

One of those awkward pauses followed in which nobody seemed to know what to do. Sands stared hard at the floor. Ransome wriggled in his chair uncomfortably. Even Blodgett's carved features twitched for an instant. Mrs. Missioner gazed at Elinor, plainly perplexed. Sympathy struggled slowly to the surface of her gaze. She went up to her secretary, and put her arm about the weeping girl's waist.

"This cannot be necessary, Mr. Donnelly," she said. "I would rather lose jewels twice as valuable than have Miss Holcomb distressed in this way. She knows nothing she will not tell us."

Donnelly and Carson whispered fervently to one another at a little distance from the central group. Blodgett's eyes, turning slowly in a graven face, traversed the length and breadth of them as if nothing could please him better than to still the Bacchante with a mighty blow and jolt Carson out of the room. The only person entirely at ease was Griswold. He smoked tranquilly, his glance traveling from one to another in rotation with the appreciativeness of a connoisseur studying a great picture. There was something of the dilettante in the man. He was the opposite of Sands in every particular save breeding, and even in that respect there was a difference.

Sands broke the tension with a suddenness that fairly shouted his whole character. Rising so abruptly that his chair fell backward with a crash, he strode to the telephone and seized the instrument savagely. He was calling Police Headquarters before either of the detectives recovered from his surprise. Donnelly hastened toward him, the Bacchante in great agitation. He pushed out a fat hand as if to stop the millionaire.

"What are you going to do?" asked the sleuth, visibly anxious.

"I'm going to have Manning call you fellows back to Mulberry Street," said Sands, his jaw hardening. "He's sent the wrong men. This isn't a Tenderloin case."

"Now, see here, Mr. Sands—" snarled Donnelly threateningly.

"I'm seeing straight enough," returned Sands. "I asked the Detective Bureau to send up an important case, and the wires crossed before my message got to the Chief. Somebody told him it was a Chinatown hold-up. Now I'm going to talk to him straight. Hello, Spring! What's the matter with that number?"

"You're going strong, Mr. Sands, even for a society man," said Donnelly, doing his best to quiet the Bacchante, "but I don't see any shield on your shirtfront, and me and my partner ain't got any call taking orders from you. We're on this case, and we're going to stay on it. And if you start anything with Manning, you want to be sure you can finish it." He was white, shaking—whether with rage or fear no one could say. Turning to Mrs. Missioner, he went on: "I suppose you know, ma'am, interference with an officer is a pretty serious thing. We're here on duty, and it's up to you to see we're not bothered."

Mrs. Missioner paled. She dreaded not the law, but a scene.

"I think we would better let them have their way, Bruxton," she murmured, the light of admiration in her eyes in contrast to her words. "Mr. Donnelly knows Miss Holcomb's standing now. He will remember."

Donnelly didn't know precisely what he was expected to remember, but he realized gentler tactics were safer toward the widow's secretary while Sands was around. It did not escape even his observation that neither Ransome nor Griswold had said anything in Miss Holcomb's defense.

"Now, this is all wrong, young lady," he said to Elinor, bearing on the soft pedal as much as he could. "It isn't right for you to go on like this, you know. You'll get yourself all worked up and then you won't be able to answer our questions. Take my word for it, it's best for you to keep yourself in hand."

Elinor couldn't keep herself in hand while that raucous voice was thrust into her self-respect like a rusty file gripped as a point. She fought for self-mastery, but the shock was too much for her determination. Dorothy's sisterly comforting only made her tears flow more freely. Her whole form quivered with staccato sobs. Carson, still on his little journey around the room, came full within range of Blodgett's right-angled gaze. As he sensed the footman's expression he started violently and, stepping back swiftly, turned away in confusion. Not a muscle of Blodgett's other features moved, but his eyes seemed to reach for the detective.

Donnelly was rapidly recovering his place on the pedestal. Hands writhed in pockets, he rocked on his heels and looked at Elinor piercingly with his little eyes. The girl, in an interval between sobs, raised her head and saw that gaze. A slow flush swept her face. She detached herself gently from little Miss March, and lifting that graceful head of hers higher, ever higher, faced the sleuth with composure as startling as had been her loss of control.

"If you have anything more to ask, sir," she said in a low tone, "I will try to answer."

"Thanks!" came the curt reply. "I knew you'd come around. You see, Miss Elinor—"

"Miss Holcomb!" burst from Sands in a thunder tone. "Hol-comb—you understand—Miss Holcomb!" Donnelly pretended not to notice the interruption, but he did not address Elinor by her first name again. But Carson seemed as perturbed as he had been under the malignant gaze of the motionless Blodgett.

"What were you doing in Maiden Lane the other day?" asked Donnelly, sharply.

"I was not in Maiden Lane. I haven't been downtown in weeks. The last time I went south of the shopping district was more than a month ago."

"That is true," said Mrs. Missioner hurriedly. "Miss Holcomb went to the Battery Trust company for me."

"Much obliged, ma'am," Donnelly was learning to show more deference to the widow. Carson had whispered to him something of her social importance. Yes, Carson, although he was only a neutral tint in the human color scheme, knew a few things.

"Was that the day you took the diamonds to Tiffany's?" queried the big detective quickly. "To have one of the small stones made tighter, you know."

Miss Holcomb's disdain had given place to dull wonder. Where had the man got his misinformation? Could it be he really thought—but, no. It was impossible. She felt as if something suffocating was closing about her. She lifted one hand to her throat to force back the sobs that would come.

"I am completely confused by your questions," she stammered. "I—I do not know how to answer. What you say is so strange." She looked at the others with a world of appeal in those gray eyes. Astonishment, sympathy, affection, cynicism, mutely replied. Stretching both hands toward Mrs. Missioner, advancing with faltering steps, the victim of the detective's persecution cried: "Mrs. Missioner, is it possible you can think—do you even imagine I—I—oh, with a swift turn to Miss March, 'Dorothy, Dorothy!'"

To the credit of little Miss March be it remembered she met Elinor's second appeal with undiminished tenderness. Mrs. Missioner, too, was kind, but her gentle "No, Elinor," was not as reassuring as the loving pat Dorothy squandered on the bent shoulders of the distressed girl. Sands swore in his thoughts. His big fingers bent a gold penholder into wavy lines. Ransome, with alternate finger-tips, turned lines in his palms. Griswold traced his cigarette round and round with agile fingers and thumb. Blodgett's eyes seemed to lunge at the detectives.

"I guess Miss Holcomb isn't ready to tell all she knows—yet," said Donnelly meaningly. "While we're waiting for her to steady her nerves, we'll just have a look in her room."

Mrs. Missioner was about to negative the suggestion, but a glance at Elinor's shaking form stopped her. She did not reply, and the detectives walked out of the room in silence. A look from the widow sent Blodgett stalking in their wake. The footman kept his eyes on Donnelly's turned-out toes as if calculating how much strength was required to seize those thick ankles with a sudden heave. Not until the central office men were at the end of the passage did the sobbing secretary start in great agitation toward the door. On the threshold she paused and turned slowly till she faced the group.

"Since they are going to search my—the room," she said, in a choking voice, "I wish you would all come there with me. I—I feel that—won't you all come—please?"

The men hung back, but Doris and Dorothy joined her on the instant and together the three women followed the detectives into the lift. Blodgett backed from the car and stood staring at the detectives through the rose-tinted grill. A boy in quiet livery threw the lever and the steel cage shot upward. The car stopped at the third floor and the little party proceeded to a room at the end of a softly-lighted corridor.

POSED AS MODEL FOR SALOME

History of Beautiful Original of Henri Regnault's Painting Is Told for First Time.

Paris.—Much has been heard lately of Henri Regnault's picture "Salome," which after being bought for a comparatively small sum in his lifetime was sold for over $100,000 last month, and no little curiosity has been expressed as to the history of the beautiful girl who served as a model. Her own daughter tells the story in the illustration. She says:

"Marie Veronica Concetto Latini came from the Sabine country, and was born in 1853 near Tivoli. Her father, a fine looking man, was a humble bee keeper. Nature, though she had given the child little wealth in money, had endowed her with jet black hair, beautiful brown eyes and exquisite teeth.

"One Christmas eve when she was only twelve years old a French sculptor named Renaudet saw her in St. Peter's and was struck with her beauty. Some time afterward he met her in the country riding on a donkey behind her father. That decided him; he introduced himself to her family and fell hopelessly in love.

"When the girl was fifteen years old his friend Henri Regnault made the beauty's acquaintance and asked her to sit to him as Salome. The picture finished he migrated to Spain and Morocco and finally met his death fighting in the war of 1870.

"Renaudet had also left Rome to take part in the war, in which he greatly distinguished himself, and on peace being signed he hurried back to Rome to marry Maria Latini. She was then seventeen years old and he was thirty-six."

Renaudet's health did not permit him to pursue his career as an artist for many years after this. His last work was a "Diana the Huntress," now at the Palais Bourbon. But despite the anxiety his weak health gave his wife it was she who was the first to be taken, at the end of 1900. Her husband only survived her three weeks.

WIDOW WEDS AT MIDNIGHT

Ordinary Way of Getting Married Did Not Appeal to San Francisco Woman.

New York.—Mrs. E. Brinckerhoff Sanford, a widow of San Francisco, knew the ordinary way of getting married, and it didn't appeal to her. She wanted "something very romantic," as she herself described it, so she went to Fishkill on the Hudson.

With her prospective husband, Addison Clark Angus of Briardiff, N. Y., she drove into the little town at about eight o'clock at night.

Justice of the Peace Frank S. Colwell married them at midnight, while he stood on the railing board of their high powered touring car at the corner of Perry and Beacon streets. Fishkill, with Night Policeman Theodore Morse nonchalantly swinging his night stick as he officiated as the sole witness.

Angus thought of bowers of roses, lighting effects and flower girls, but the thoughts of the widow were running along different lines. When the touring car on which they said they had come from Maine whizzed into town, Mr. Angus, who had given his age as twenty-six, picked up policeman Morse.

Morse piloted them to the residence of Justice Colwell, and they got him out of bed.

The lighting effects consisted of one 16 candle-power electric bulb, swinging in the wind at the corner, and there was added a touch of realism in the shape of a downpour of rain.

Justice Colwell had great difficulty in appreciating the romance of the affair. He wanted them to come into the house.

ARREST SOUSE BOARD MAN

Tells Tale of "Thousand Reporters" and Attempts to Shake Off the "Devils."

New York.—The Rev. Dr. William Morrison, who as secretary of the board of inebriety had a controversy recently with Mayor Gaynor over the police situation, was arrested in the mayor's office and removed to Bellevue hospital for observation as to his sanity. He threatened to kill himself, but accompanied the police willingly, saying that he wished to "get rid of the evil spirits."

Dr. Morrison began talking incoherently almost as soon as he entered the mayor's office. He said that he was going to walk to Belmar, N. J., and kill himself to shake off the evil spirits following him. He added that there were "a thousand reporters" in his room. He also talked incoherently about "polarity."

Dr. Morrison was formerly pastor of a Brooklyn church, and has been identified with police chaplain work. Through his friendship with Mayor Gaynor he was appointed secretary of the board of inebriety, which has in charge the care of habitual drunkards. He was overcome by heat last year.

Hits Suffragettes.

Chicago.—That militant suffrage is a "dreadful movement" and that the hunger striking suffragettes should be "allowed to starve" was the position taken by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman in an address here.

Courts Slow; Kills Self.

Houston, Tex.—Because the courts were so slow in granting her a divorce, so she could marry her Japanese lover, Mrs. Ida Hawley, a magazine writer, committed suicide here.

DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR A BAD LIVER OR SLUGGISH BOWELS

This Gentle, Effective Fruit Laxative Thoroughly Cleans Your Stomach, Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels of Sour Bile, Poisons, Gases and Clogged-Up Waste.

A harmless cure for sick headache, for biliousness, for a sour, gassy, disordered stomach, for constipation, indigestion, coated tongue, salivousness, pimples—take delicious Syrup of Figs. For the cause of all these troubles lies in a torpid liver and sluggish condition of your thirty feet of bowels.

A teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs tonight means all poisonous waste matter, the undigested, fermenting food and sour bile, gently moved on and out of your system by morning, without griping, nausea or weakness. It means a cheery day tomorrow—many bright days thereafter.

Please don't think of gentle, effective Syrup of Figs as a placebo. Don't think you are drugging yourself, for delicious figs, senna and aromatics can not injure anyone.

This remarkable fruit preparation is a wonderful stomach, liver and bowel cleanser, regulator and tonic, the safest and most positive ever devised.

The day of violent purgatives, such as calomel, pills, salts and castor oil is past. They were all wrong. You got relief, but at what a cost! They acted by flooding the bowels with fluids, but these fluids were digestive juices. Syrup of Figs embody only harmless laxatives, which act in a natural way. It does what right food would do—what eating lots of fruit and what plenty of exercise will do for the liver, stomach and bowels.

Be sure you get the old reliable and genuine. Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Company. Hand back, with scorn, any Fig Syrup imitation recommended as "just as good."

Queer, But Correct.

Prof. Brander Matthews, in his quality of philologist, said the other day in New York: "The past participle, 'gotten,' has gone out in England though it still lingers on with us. In England, however, 'gotten' is almost as obsolete as 'putten.' In some parts of Cumberland the villagers still use 'gotten' and 'putten' and a pupil teacher once told me of a lesson or these past participles wherein she gave her pupils an exercise to write on the blackboard. In the midst of the exercise an urban began to laugh. She asked him why he was laughing and he answered: 'Joe's put putten where he should have putten put.'"

DIXON GIRL WILL TEACH.

Miss Otie Steacy of Dixon has been hired by the directors of the here.

Arnett school. She appeared before the county superintendent Saturday and took the examination. The Arnett school board had much trouble in securing a desirable teacher for that district. They were, however, fortunate in engaging Miss Steacy. She is reported to be a young lady of excellent qualifications for this work. The school started October 7, with a goodly number of pupils.—Sterling Gazette.

Mrs. J. H. Wagner and daughter were here today from Ashton.

AGRICULTURAL CHEMISTRY.

Secrets of Success Laid Bare by Former Member of Illinois Legislature.

In an address at the Rock Falls Corn Carnival, Hon. A. N. Abbott, Legislator, Farmer, Stockman and Illinois Farmers' Institute Director of Morrison, Ill., discussed the farm problems in a way that put a new meaning into the words: Scientific Agriculture, Nutritive Ratio and Balanced Ration. Following are a few important sentences from this practical man's remarks:

Farm Chemistry.

The alchemist of old tried in his mysterious ways to produce gold from the elements; the modern scientist points out the way for every farmer to procure gold—he has only to follow directions.

The chemist takes into his laboratory the soils from the fields and analyzes them; he learns what elements the fertile fields contain—what elements are present to make them productive. He also learns what elements of fertility are lacking, or are present in small quantities only, in the fields which produce small crops. He finds that by supplying the missing or deficient elements a fertile and well balanced soil may be made; that the four elements most likely to be lacking are Phosphorus, Potassium, Calcium (lime) and Nitrogen.

How to Supply Needed Elements.

The phosphorus, if deficient, is supplied in the form of bone meal or ground rock phosphate, the potassium in the form of kainit or some other of its commercial forms, the calcium in the form of ground limestone, while the nitrogen may be obtained through the application of barn yard manure, or from the air through the proper use of the legumes. To buy a complete commercial fertilizer is on a par with giving a sick animal a shotgun dose of all the remedies in the office when the Doctor does not know what the trouble is. Common sense and economy would seem to require that when the soil is sick the sickness should be properly diagnosed and only the needed remedy applied.

Technical Feeding Terms Made Easy

The chemist takes into his laboratory animal tissue; through inspection he finds that some is fat and some is lean meat while the bone is of a composition quite unlike either. He analyzes the various parts and finds that the fat meat contains large quantities of carbon and he calls it carbohydrate. The lean meat contains large quantities of nitrogen and he calls it nitrogenous. He finds the bone contains large quantities of calcium or lime. He analyzes wheat, oats, barley, timothy hay, clover, oil-meal. He also analyzes corn for corn is king, and alfalfa because alfalfa is one of nature's best gifts to man. He finds that these products contain varying amounts of nitrogenous and carbohydrate elements, some rich in one and some the other. The ratio between the nitrogenous and the carbohydrates he calls Nutritive Ratio.

The Nutritive Ratio.

The chemist found that timothy hay had a nutritive ratio of 1 to 20—that is in simple terms, one part of leans to 20 parts of the fats. He found that corn has a nutritive ratio of 1 to 10, and that alfalfa has a ratio of 1 to 3.5.

By experimenting and observation the chemist found that a young animal fed on timothy hay and corn, or any ration containing large quantities of carbohydrates exclusively, does not do well; so, too, an animal fed entirely on oil-meal or alfalfa hay did not do well because of the excess of nitrogen. He found that somewhere between these two extremes there is a happy medium he called a Balanced Ration.

The Balanced Ration.

The chemist found by investigation that for most young animals a ration containing 1 part of the nitrogenous to 6 of the carbohydrates made a balanced ration, or a nutritive ratio of 1 to 6 gave the most satisfactory results. He also found that when an animal was fed on a ration with a nutritive ratio of 1 to 10, when its system required a food ration of 1 to 6, the difference between 6 parts and 10 parts of carbohydrates was wasted. It is evident then that when a horse is fed corn which has a ratio of 1 to 10, and timothy hay which has a ratio of 1 to 20, while its system requires a food ratio of 1 to 6, the waste must be enormous.

Waste at Feed-Rack Small Item.

Many good farmers who feed carefully so that there is no apparent waste at the manger or on the feeding floor are wasting much of their feed by reason of its not being balanced. The extravagant waste of material fed carelessly by boys and hired men—feed tramped in the mud at the feed rack is not one-hundredth part of the waste caused by feeding an unbalanced ration.

Corn and alfalfa make a balanced feed; both can be raised on Illinois land. They each supplement the other. By growing these crops and combining them properly it will not be necessary for the dairyman, swine grower, the horse raiser or the cattle feeder to buy concentrated food stuffs at an exorbitant price to balance his home grown rations. Corn and alfalfa are the elements from which the farmers may produce the shining gold—Illinois Farmers' Institute, Springfield, Ill.

LINK POPE TO HOME

Sisters Often Present When He Takes Midday Meal.

Energetic Niece Shields Them From
Inquisition—Are Besieged by Pilgrims—Lead Simple Lives—
Cling to Black Veils.

Rome.—Signorina Rosa Sarto, the eldest sister of Pius X., who two months ago had a slight stroke of paralysis, has now quite recovered. Her speech, which was affected, is normal again, and she is able to walk as usual. The other day she went on a visit to her brother in the Vatican. The second sister, Maria, has just returned after a three weeks' visit to the pontiff's native country, Venezia, where she stayed first at his birthplace, Riese, among his more immediate relatives, and later with another sister, Teresa, and her son, Don Giovanni Battista, who is arch-priest at Possagno, twenty miles from Riese.

She brought back to the pope many messages and recollections of the old and intimate family life which he loved so well. She left behind, for the time, her niece, Gilda Parolin, who lives almost constantly with her aunts in Rome, and who, being young and more vivacious than they, acts as their interpreter; at some times as their protector, dispersing the swarms of pilgrims, foreigners, journalists and photographers, who watch their every movement, and constantly seek to come in contact with them and ask questions—often very indiscreet questions—of these near relatives of the pontiff, who, they think, must know all the secrets of the Vatican.

The sisters Sarto and their niece are usually received by the pontiff twice a week, on Thursdays and Sundays. They are sometimes present when he takes his simple midday dinner, and are even occasionally admitted to share his meal.

Since the time of Urban VIII, in the seventeenth century, it had been the unbroken rule for the pope to take all meals in solitary state, waited on by a special attendant, called "Lo Scalo Segreto" (the secret carver), generally a member of the aristocracy, with whom he occasionally talked.

Great was the surprise at the Vatican when, in the early days of his pontificate, Pius X. invited his private secretaries, Mgrs. Bressan and Pesci and others of his more intimate friends, to eat with him.

When the master of ceremonies ventured respectfully to mention the subject to him, Pius X., after inquiring which pope it was who had made the rule, tranquilly remarked that if Urban VIII. had exercised his right to establish the custom, he (Pius X.) intended to exercise his right to abolish it.

The Sarto sisters, when they first came to the Eternal City, had it delicately intimated to them that a black lace veil was not the headgear for people in their position, to which they replied that they assumed no "position," and that it was useless to speak of hats, as they had no use for them.

To reinforce their attitude they applied to the pontiff, which showed them to be less simple than they were judged, as he sternly sets his face against anything which may even seem like pretending to be what you are not. But as usual, time and experience worked wonders, and one fine day the faithful, who were gathered for a papal ceremony, saw three modest black hats in the box set apart for the family of the pontiff, and wondered who the wearers were, and if the sisters were ill. It was no mystery, however. They had themselves become convinced that to avoid comment they must "do as the Romans do," and hence the hats.

Experts of Department of Agriculture
Give Result of Investigation of Lightning.

Washington.—The department of agriculture made public the results of an exhaustive investigation of lightning strokes throughout the country. The report disposes of the belief of the ancient philosophers that certain kinds of trees, the laurel, aspen and beech, were never struck by lightning, with the statement that "any kind of tree is likely to be struck."

The report shows that lightning strikes in the Colorado plateau region more often than anywhere else in the country, and asserts that lightning is a prolific source of fires in the forests of the west.

Sentenced to Shake Hands.

Muncie, Ind.—When Ada Steed and Clara Tartar appeared in city court, where each had filed several charges against the other, growing out of a quarrel, L. E. Stratton, the Dixon boy who last season was the most able backstop in the Western league, will be behind the bat for the locals. Dannie Miller, who beat the White Sox here two years ago by a 1 to 9 score, will be in the box for Dixon, and should he be needed, Iron Man Lange of the Sox will be on hand to relieve him. Lange is the man who took up the battle against the Cubs Monday, when the Sox were six runs behind, and held the slugging National leaguers to two runs in the seven innings he pitched.

Dixon Boy on First.

On first base Grover (Rip Welmer) Tracey of this city will cavort. Tracey helped Zaddie Killian win the W-I. league pennant this year and his work as a first sacker is par excellence. Dennie Blake, another Dixon favorite, will show Johnnie Evers how to play the second sack. Dennie went like a house a-fire in the Three Eye league this year, making a home for himself at Decatur, and Dixon fans will avail themselves of this opportunity to renew acquaintance with him.

Another Dixon Boy on Third.

Another Dixon lad will be on third—Joey Kernan. Kernan made so good in the W-I league this season that he has been drafted by the White Sox. The local fans know him and his ability and he will get a lot of glad hands tomorrow. Downey of the Philadelphia National leaguers will be at short, thus insuring quite some infield.

Strong Outfield.

In the outfield Leonard of the Des Moines Western league team, Mattick of the White Sox—the man who robbed Heine Zimmerman of a home run yesterday—and Hap Cranley of Streator will chase any long flies that are made off of Miller and

No comment is necessary on the Cubs. The original and genuine Cub lineup will appear here—the contract calls explicitly for that team, and the fans will have an opportunity to see the great team that starting in mid-season under a handicap of 16 games, went right after the Giants and gave them the scare of their lives, and would have won the National pennant had it not been for unsportsmanlike doings of President Tom Lynch of the league who deliberately weakened the Cubs at every opportunity.

The Dixon union high school football team is making great preparations for Saturday's game with the Morrison high school team, which will be the first scheduled game of the season in this city. FACE A SIGHT WITH TETTER Began With Pimple. Spread All Over Face. In Agony All the Time. Itched and Smarted. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Was Cured.

Moberly, Mo.—"My trouble began with a small pimple on the left side of my face and it spread all over my face and to my neck. It would be scarlet red when I got warm. My face was a sight. It looked very unpleasant, and it felt uncomfortable. My face was something awful; it just kept me in agony all the time. Some said it was tetter, and some said it was a small pox, but I rather think it was tetter. I had been troubled with it for about two years and tried many remedies but got no relief until I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.

"When I would wash my face with the Cuticura Soap and apply the Cuticura Ointment it would cool my skin and draw great big drops of matter out of the skin. You would think I was sweating; it would run down my face just as though I had washed it. It itched and smarted and I suffered in the day time most from the heat from the sores. I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for a month and I was cured of it. I will tell everyone I know who has any trouble of the skin." (Signed) Mrs. J. Brookshier, Apr. 15, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. A single set is often sufficient. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

*Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.

colonel for any length of time. It has been decided that the colonel's injuries are so serious as absolutely to preclude any further attempts at going on the stump. He has told Beveridge what he wants his final message to the people to be, and Beveridge will deliver it at Louisville next week.

Visitors Are Barred.

The colonel was not allowed to receive visitors through the day. Many called, but few got past the front gate of the hospital, which is carefully guarded by a police detail.

Medill McCormick and Cecil Lyon were both early morning callers. In the afternoon, he received by special appointment the newspaper men who had been with him on his campaign tour, and who were in his party at the time he was shot. To those the colonel said that he felt as well as could be expected, and that he had not the slightest fear that his injuries were in the least serious.

As the day wore on the surgeons who have his case in charge seemed to disagree with his view to some extent.

Doctors Murphy and Bevan, whose names have appeared on the bulletins, were inclined to scoff at the wound early in the morning, but at one o'clock they pointed out that the injuries are really serious, and that the patient must be kept absolutely quiet or his chances of recovery will not be so good.

The fear of blood poisoning is in the minds of all who are at the bedside of the Progressive candidate, and in the opinion of the surgeons it will take some little time to determine just whether or not the colonel is going to escape this danger.

May Cause Infection.

At the time he was shot he had on a heavy outside overcoat. The bullet passed through this, through his frock coat, through the thick wad of manuscript from which he made his address later on and through a metal spectacle case in which he carries his huge tortoise goggles. While all these served to diminish the force of the bullet, any of the outer materials may have held infection which can be just as dangerous as a bullet.

The colonel's great vitality, however, is counted on to pull him through any ordinary ordeal, and the physicians in their final bulletins were very hopeful that he has seen his worst day.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Theodore, Jr., and his wife, Miss Ethel Roosevelt and Doctor Lambert arrived in Chicago on the Twenty-first Century this morning from New York city. Mrs. Longworth hurried over from Cincinnati last night. All are at the colonel's bedside.

Kermit Roosevelt is in Brazil. News of the attempted assassination was cabled him Monday night and he replied in a cablegram to his father.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 16.—One of the first things Gov. Woodrow Wilson did was to read the newspaper accounts of the attempt to assassinate Mr. Roosevelt. He sent the following telegram to the colonel at Chicago:

"Please accept my warmest sympathy and heartiest congratulations that your wound is not serious."

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 16.—Speaker Champ Clark, who addressed a big political meeting here, telegraphed to Colonel Roosevelt as follows: "Awfully sorry that you were shot. Glad no worse. Hope for your speedy recovery."

REV. J. M. HERBST TALKS ON ECONOMICS

PASTOR AT NACHUSA MAKES INTERESTING REPORT IN ANNUAL REMARKS.

NACHUSA WILL HAVE LECTURE COURSE

Mrs. Elizabeth DeBarry Gill Opens Series This Friday—Interesting Program Has Been Arranged for This Winter.

Rev. J. M. Herbst of Nachusa, in his annual report to the church recently, including the following remarks:

Earnest students of the economic conditions of the country are turning their attention more and more to the conditions in rural communities.

Formerly the conditions of city life received the major portion of the consideration.

Now, educators, editors, religious leaders are devoting their best effort to developing the highest and best in the noblest calling that can engage the activities of men, the life of a modern, up-to-date farmer.

A most hopeful "sign of the times" is the fact that many rural communities themselves are awakening to a sense of their opportunities. Particularly is this true of the country church.

Articles are appearing in the periodicals of the day emphasizing more and more the work of the country church in solving the problems of country life. These messages are meeting with encouraging response.

The country congregations are asking themselves the question: Are we living up to the full measure of our opportunities? Are we, in short, properly witnessing for Christ?

Many press notices tell us how churches here and there are attempting to meet in a more adequate way, the social and intellectual as well as the spiritual need of the community in which they are located.

The Nachusa Lutheran church appears to be making some considerable advancement along these lines.

A lecture course has been secured for this winter, consisting of four numbers supplied by one of the leading Lyceum bureaus, and one home talent number produced by the young people of the community.

The rural churches of the country must be alert to catch the spirit of enterprise and progress that is dominant in the general affairs of the world today, and turn it to the advantage of the Kingdom of God. Not forgetting, meanwhile, the exhortation of God's word "Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it."

"It is not by might, nor by power, but by My spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

Under the auspices of the Nachusa Lutheran church a lecture course will be given this fall and winter for the first time in Nachusa. It will consist of five numbers, one to be given each month, all of as high class as are arranged in the larger cities.

The first number will be given Friday evening of this week when Mrs. Elizabeth DeBarry Gill, a talented entertainer who has appeared on the leading lecture platforms of the east will give her program. Mrs. Gill who is an artist, contralto soloist and a reader, has given her entertainment in this part of the country before, and has been enthusiastically received. The entertainment will be held in the church at 8 p. m.

The other numbers are a home talent program Nov. 15; a lecture, "The Art of Seeing Things," by Dr. Wirt Loewther in December; a lecture on social evils, "The Worms Beneath the Bark," by Chas. Howard Plattenburg, in January, and the closing number, a concert, by the Maude Stevens Concert company, in February.

The church is to be commended for its efforts to put a high class of entertainments before the people of its community.

ASSASSIN ADMITS GUILT IN COURT

Despite Secrecy of Police Large Crowd Witnesses His Arraignment.

BOND IS FIXED AT $7,500

Public Feeling Very Strong Against Prisoner and Officials Are Relieved When Man Is Transferred to County Jail.

Milwaukee, Oct. 16.—John Schrank, would be assassin of President Roosevelt, is resting in a cell in the county jail, having been transferred there from the Central police station after being arraigned before Judge Neelen in the district court on the charge of assault with intent to kill. He is resting as quietly as he could if he were a normal man in an ordinary hotel.

Pleads Guilty to Charge.

"I am guilty as charged," he said in answer to the formal question, "and I am willing to waive preliminary hearing. Set the case for trial any time you like, for I am not in a hurry. I am quite indifferent."

As this most remarkable man was led away to his cell he stretched his arms, yawned and remarked:

"I'm all tired out now. I hope they will let me get a good sleep tonight."

Feeling against the prisoner, which flamed hot immediately after the shooting Monday night, and took the form of threats of lynching, died down somewhat in the early part of the day, only to be rekindled in the afternoon when reports of the gravity of Colonel Roosevelt's condition reached Milwaukee.

People Demand Speedy Justice.

Once more there was anxiety among police officials who had the man in charge, and they were obviously relieved when their prisoner was transferred to the county jail. There was no serious talk of lynching, but demands for the extreme penalty provided by law were heard on every side, coupled with hot demands that there should be no delay in justice.

The most careful secrecy was used in taking Schrank from the Central police station to Judge Neelen's court. The move was not announced to anybody in advance excepting the police, the district attorney's staff and attaches of the court. In spite of that, however, nearly two hundred people who had seen Schrank's picture in the papers recognized him as he walked between two detectives to the courtroom, and so there was a crowd present at his arraignment.

Schrank's Bail Fixed at $7,500.

Schrank chatted with the detectives as he walked. He seemed anxious to create a favorable impression of himself. He brushed his hair carefully, donned a clean collar, brushed his clothing and, with his handkerchief, flicked the dust from his shoes.

"You see I am a national character now," he said, "and I want to look the part."

"Do you want an early trial?" asked Assistant District Attorney Reilman. "You are entitled to have one if you want it."

"There's no hurry," said Schrank. "In that case," said Judge Neelen, "you are bound over to the next term of the municipal court and your bail will be fixed at $7,500."

In this state all prisoners except those who are held for murder or vagrancy are entitled to bail. Another difference between this state's laws and those of Illinois is the fact that, even if Schrank had succeeded in killing Colonel Roosevelt, he could not have suffered the death penalty.

Morose Viewing Cartoons.

New York, Oct. 16.—John Schrank, would be assassin of Theodore Roosevelt, until two weeks ago lived in the "White House" at 55 Canal street, a place filled with an atmosphere peculiarly Socialistic. Here his imaginative mind, grown morose from signal lack of success, fed daily on old cartoons hung on the wall of the bar-room, depicting the vast difference between the workingman and the person of wealth.

Was Born in New York.

The proprietor of the "White House," Gustave Jost, told reporters that he has known Schrank for at least five years. He said the map who attempted to kill Roosevelt was born in Elizabeth street, this city, about thirty-five years ago, at a place in which his father owned a saloon.

"When I first came to know him," said Jost, "he was a bartender and an insurance agent, by turns. He asked me about a year ago if I knew where he could get a position as a bartender. He said his insurance business was no good. Since then he has drifted from one job to another."

Schrank came to the "White House" last May. He secured a $2 room and registered as "John Flammang." The "White House" is a small, three-story building, of a better class than the bowery hotels and lodging houses, but a few doors removed. Schrank is said to have been at one time an ardent admirer of Herr Most, the anarchistic Socialist.

MUST VOTE FOR TAFT

Roosevelt, Who Cannot Be Elected, Says That Wilson's Election Means National-Wide Disaster.

Col. Roosevelt, the Third Term Candidate, cannot possibly be elected. There is no way in which he can carry enough states to give him 266 electoral votes.

But by dividing the Republican party, Col. Roosevelt can aid in electing Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic candidate. Should Wilson be elected? Roosevelt says that Wilson's election would plunge this country into nationwide disaster. Here are Roosevelt's own words, written in the Outlook of July 27, 1912:

"If Dr. Wilson were elected, he would either have to repudiate the promises made about the tariff in the Democratic platform of 1908 or else of causing such disaster to every industry in the country to a crash which would make all panics in our past history seem like child's play in comparison. In short, were Dr. Wilson elected on this platform, he would be obliged at the very outset of his administration to face the alternatives of dishonesty or disaster, the alternatives of refusing to carry out the expressed pledges of the platform, or else of causing such disaster to every worker in the country as would mean nationwide ruin."

As Roosevelt cannot be elected, and as Roosevelt says that Wilson's election would mean disaster, it is a logical conclusion that the vote of the country must be given to President Taft.

TALKING ABOUT STRAWS.

The Billings (Mont.) Daily Gazette, which has been a strong Roosevelt paper until recently, has come over to Taft, the editor giving his reasons for the change in a double-column article, declaring that he sees no hope for the success of the Third Term party, and is convinced that the cause of real reform can be best promoted by continuing the Republican party in power. The article particularly emphasizes the danger of bringing about adverse business conditions through a change in administration, and points out the steady advance which has been made under Republican policies. It is a most significant editorial, and as the Gazette is the most important paper in Montana, its influence upon the election can hardly be measured. It is only another one of the innumerable signs that the Third Term party has collapsed, that the country realizes the fight is between the Republican party and the Democratic party, and that no possible benefit could be derived from a change.

HADLEY IS FOR TAFT

Roosevelt's Former Manager Comes Out Squarely for the President.

Gov. Hadley, of Missouri, who was one of Roosevelt's managers at the Republican national convention, and who had charge of the contest made by Roosevelt delegates, has declined to follow the Third Term candidate out of the Republican party, and has declared that he will support President Taft. In a speech at Jefferson City, Mo., he said:

"I hope that these many high-minded but, I believe, mistaken men, who have thought there was a greater interest to be subserved by joining in the organization of a new party and the nomination of another State ticket, will yet see that by such acts they are simply doing that which tends to insure Democratic success. And I hope that they will come back to the party which has stood for decency; that has stood for sane and effective progress in the conduct of public affairs."

After appealing to Republicans to support the Republican nominees, Gov. Hadley pointed out in his speech that the Democrats were pledged to the same kind of tariff legislation as they gave to the country after the Democratic victory of 1892. He said that no Republican could associate himself with those whose efforts tended to insure Democratic success.

FORAKER SUPPORTS TAFT

Says All Other Candidates Seek to Destroy Republican Party.

By his physician's orders, former Senator Foraker has been compelled to decline the invitation to make speeches this campaign. Of course, as a loyal Republican, he is supporting Taft. For quite a while the former senator was in Maine for his health, and while there he was a keen observer of the political situation. He declares that the result in Maine was emphatically a victory for the policy of protection. Upon his return home he gave a highly interesting statement to the Cincinnati "Commercial Tribune," from which the following is excerpted:

"It is the duty, of every Republican who wants to support the Republican party and Republican principles to remember that there is no way to support the party and its principles except by supporting President Taft."

"Nobody else pretends to represent the Republican party. Every other candidate for the presidency is the open and avowed enemy of the Republican party. All alike are seeking its defeat and destruction."

Libraries on Shipboard.

The navy department spends every year $30,000 for libraries on use on its ships. Each "ship's" library includes 300 books, mostly technical, and more or less expensive on that account. A "crew's" library is usually made up of about five hundred books on fiction and of such character suitable for entertainment. About one-third of the books are replaced each year. The changes are made upon the recommendation of those in charge of the ships, but it has developed that this is not a satisfactory method, as much depends upon the points of view on literature possessed by the responsible persons. So it is proposed to standardize the libraries by making the changes in Washington, applying them generally to all ships. It is further held that this plan would work for economy, effecting a saving of from ten to fifteen thousand dollars a year.

Risked Lives to Save Dog.

For five days the piteous howling of a black retriever dog at the bottom of a deep pit shaft disconcerted the neighborhood of Consett, Durham, England, not long ago, and at last several men risked their lives in rescuing it. The shaft is 120 feet deep, and having been out of use for many years, contains a good depth of water. Mr. Charles Musgrave, a local colliery official, decided to make an attempt and on going to the bottom found difficulty in keeping his head above water. He was in great peril of being crushed to death by falls of earth, and his prolonged absence led to a number of men going down in search. He was discovered endeavoring to extricate the dog, which was in a terrible state of exhaustion and nervousness. It had to be conveyed by force to safety where it lay down at the feet of its grateful owner.

Daniel Webster's Clock.

A French clock is an interesting addition to the collection of relics and mementos of Daniel Webster, now in the possession of Dartmouth college, from which Webster was graduated in 1801. The clock is of intricate and artistic design, a splendid specimen of workmanship, and for many years was a part of the furnishings at his home in Marshfield. The clock, the case of which is of Gothic style, 17½ inches high, and made of metal finished in fire gilt, leaving a surface of pure gold, was made in Paris about 1840. The dial is in the form of a rose window, and beneath is a door or gate within a Gothic arch. The top is crowned with a dome surrounded by minarets.

Wireless in the Desert.

A valuable discovery has been made recently by Marconi in relation to the use of the wireless system in desert country and that is that the use of masts and antennae are not at all necessary for the purposes of communication. This removes one of the great obstacles to the proposition of establishing a system of airship routes over the Sahara, as it has been found a matter of some difficulty to find the way across the sandy stretch because of the absence of marks which act as guide posts. The discovery above referred to is that owing to the non-conductivity of the sand, messages may be launched to the ether from wires laid a short distance on the ground, in the direction of which it is desired to send the message. Dispensing with the pole in this manner greatly facilitates the use of the system in warfare, for the handling of the pole represents the greatest part of the weight and bulk of the outfit.

The Relic Industry.

The relic hunter is still abroad in the land, and his desire for the unique is fully met by several factories in this and other countries whose business is to supply the demand of those who will not be "satisfied until they get it." Towahawks by the thousands are turned out in Kansas City and are sent to the Indian reservation in the west, where they are sold to tourists, especially to foreign tourists. The manufactured article is said to look more archaic than the tomahawk made by hand. There is a relic factory at Valley Forge that runs night and day at this season turning out in a continuous stream broken swords and rusty gunstocks, pepperbox pistols, corroded bullets, blood-stained knee breeches, shot-riddled haversacks and other relics dear to the tourist's heart.

Bold But Unprofitable Retort.

"I passed that woman in the second floor apartment, downtown in Petticoat Lane this afternoon, with a wonderful new French hat on, and she had her chin up so high in the air she could see anyone she knew," said Mrs. Knox with a tinge of resentment in her voice, as she began to pave the way to inform her husband that her own old summer awning was looking disgracefully shabby and ready for the church rummage sale. "That's nothing," retorted Mr. Knox boldly, "when a woman gets a new Paris hat it generally goes to her head." Then he suddenly remembered that he had not sprinkled the lawn for several days and decided this was as good a time as any to get at it.

MUST COURT AGAIN

Mrs. Sickles Gives General Terms of Surrender.

Names Conditions Under Which She Will Resume Place in Home She Left Twenty-seven Years Ago.

New York.—In a quaint, old world manner and a voice supernally soft, despite a catch that occasionally crept into it, Mrs. Daniel Sickles unveiled her lips to tell for the first time the story of the trouble between herself and General Sickles.

Mrs. Sickles declared quietly that only upon certain conditions would she become reconciled to the picturesque old warrior with whose life hers had been linked for forty-one of its fifty-nine years. These conditions are:

First—The general must come courtin' just as he did in the old days back in Madrid when he was American ambassador to the court of Spain and she was a dark-eyed, raven-haired slip of a girl.

Second—The general must agree immediately to dismiss his housekeeper, Miss Eleanor Earl Wilmerding, at whose door Mrs. Sickles and her son Stanton place a large part of the blame for the present unfortunate conditions of affairs.

Mrs. Sickles strove to make it plain that the general himself must make the first overtures.

"There is little to say," she said. "It is not true that the breach between General Sickles and myself is impassable. I am not seeking a reconciliation; no, it must not be construed so. But the general is getting very old. Eight years more and he will have reached the century mark. He is feeble, too, and his life is narrow. He needs—"

Here the gentle old lady's emotion overmastered her and she could speak no more.

Stanton Sickles said his mother had given the general about $17,000 in the past seven years without any security whatever, and that his father held $50,000 in trust for him, given to him by his grandfather.

PRAYERS FOR THE MOSLEMS

Christians Asked to Join in Observing Martin's Hundredth Anniversary.

New York.—Leaders of mission movements in England and America are asking the Christian people of both countries to observe Oct. 16 next as a day of prayer for the conversion of Islam. The date is the one hundredth anniversary of the death of Henry Martin, a pioneer in attempts to convert followers of Moslem. The appeal to America comes from both established church and nonconformist in England, and is endorsed by leaders of all religious bodies in this country. Private prayer, family prayer and the holding of public meetings for general prayer are asked.

The appeal points out the decadent character of political states holding to the teachings of Mahomet, and states that Henry Martin's work, regarded as hopeless in his day, has by no means gone for naught. Persia, Egypt and Turkey have changed. There is a stirring race for leadership in the Sudan, between Christianity and Islamism, and a Christian propaganda that has been carried on for twenty years in Arabia is being removed to Cairo, the central city of Islam.

It is declared that some conversions have been made, and that Mohammedans are far less bitter against those of their number who change than formerly. Hospitals and medical dispensaries are being employed as powerful missionary arguments.

CHEAPENS COST OF PRODUCE

Scientist Says Ammonia, Extensively Used in Fertilizing, Can Be Made From Air and Water.

New York.—An announcement of special interest to farmers in that it may cheapen the cost of fertilizers, was made here by Prof. Hofrat Bernthsen, an eminent German scientist, lecturing before the Eighth International Chemical congress. He explained that a system has been discovered in Germany for the synthetic or artificial manufacture of ammonia by the uniting of nitrogen and hydrogen. The ammonia is prepared, he said, by passing the gases through a tube containing a substance for promoting reaction, at a temperature of about nine hundred degrees Fahrenheit, and under a pressure of 150 atmospheres.

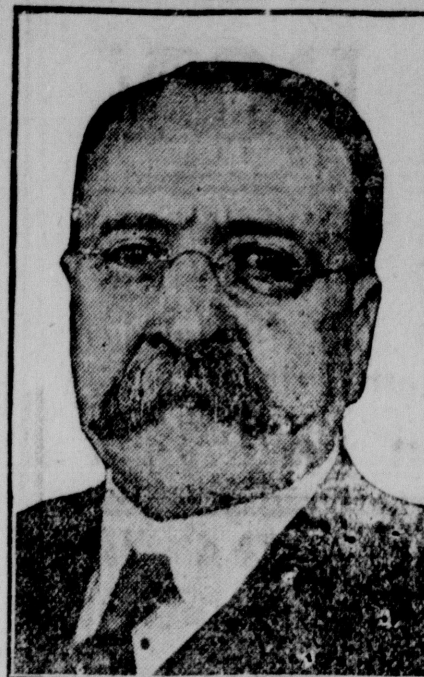

As ammonia is extensively used in the manufacture of ice and in the preparation of fertilizers, notably ammonium sulphate, Doctor Bernthsen predicted that its synthetic preparation was an important step forward in scientific achievement inasmuch as its components, nitro and hydrogen, may be obtained from water and air respectively at a negligible cost.

The world's consumption of ammonia for 1911 was estimated in value at eighty million dollars.

Berne.—In few European countries do so many people speak Esperanto as in Switzerland. In Geneva, for example, last year 17,530 people took lessons in Esperanto. Information of one kind or another was supplied by the central Esperanto office in Geneva to 10,475 persons and business houses. More than thirty-four thousand letters in Esperanto were received.

M'CORMICK CASH O.K.

Wilson Accepts Harvester Man's Money—Not Afraid.

Says Gift Was Made to Campaign as It Would Have Been Given to Princeton University.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Cleveland H. Dodge, who collected $85,000 for Governor Wilson's campaign, which included $12,500 from Cyrus H. McCormick of the International Harvester company, told the Clapp committee he realized "there might be some question" about the McCormick money.

Dodge said he feared the government's suit to dissolve the harvester company might arouse adverse criticism, and he asked Mr. McCormick to take the money back. The question finally was left to Governor Wilson.

"The governor said he was perfectly willing to receive the money and was not afraid to take it," said Dodge. "Mr. McCormick gave the money just as he would have given it to Princeton university."

Mr. Dodge told of loaning $25,000 to the Trenton (N. J.) True American early in Governor Wilson's term. It had nothing to do with the presidential pre-convention campaign, he said. Henry Jones Ford of the Princeton faculty and E. H. Howe, vice-president of the Princeton bank, told of loans to the True American. Mr. Howe testified he negotiated loans to the paper and that the "money was handed to him" by Miss Kihm, secretary to George W. Perkins. Loans to the paper totaled $40,000, he said, although that had nothing to do with the American's support of Governor Wilson.

SHOOTS ROOSEVELT MAN

Fanatic Attempts to Kill Roosevelt Man on Cleveland Street.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 16.—Charles Brown, a Roosevelt supporter, was shot in the hip here by a fanatic who apparently was celebrating the shooting of Colonel Roosevelt. Brown had purchased a paper from a newsboy, who cried out the news of the shooting, when a man standing a few feet distant drew a revolver and shouting "Hurrah!" fired two shots, one of which struck Brown. Brown collapsed and the shooter escaped.

WILSON TO END SPEECHES

Governor, After Talks Tomorrow and Friday, Will Cease Campaigning.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 16.—Governor Woodrow Wilson announced that he would cancel all speaking engagements with the exception of those arranged for Thursday and Friday of this week until Colonel Roosevelt is able to take an active part in the campaign. The governor will speak in Delaware, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, this week, concluding his campaign in Pittsburgh Friday night.

PLANE COLLAPSES: 2 DEAD

Swiss Flyer and Newspaper Man Drop Eighty Feet and Are Crushed.

Berne, Switzerland, Oct. 16.—A double flying fatality occurred at Chaux-de-Fonds, near Neuchâtel. A Swiss airman named Cobini was making an aeroplane flight, carrying a newspaper man named Bippert as a passenger, when the machine collapsed and fell from a height of 80 feet, killing both. The cause of the accident is not known.

GIANTS WIN OVER RED SOX, 11 TO 4

New Yorkers Seize Seventh Game and Make Tie in World Series.

HARD BUMP FOR JOE WOOD

Gotham Team Fall on Boston Idol and Score Six in the First Inning, Hitting Everything He Throws—Hall Tries Hand.

Fenway Park, Boston, Oct. 16.—Out-slugging, outrunning, outcounting their enemy, the Giants brought the world's series to a neck-and-neck race by seizing the seventh battle here and bringing the count three and. The score was 11 to 4, the largest total of the series.

Joe Wood, who tamed the New Yorkers twice in his previous appearances, opened for the Red Legs, and the game was practically over when he left the box at the end of the first round. Wood's curves were easy; his steam was lacking. He couldn't get the ball by. His baffling delivery, which had bewildered the Giants, was a joke. Those desperate individuals toyed with his best slants, and the damage at the conclusion of the game was six runs.

Tesreau pitched for the Giants. He hurled a good game, but had the rout of the first inning not transpired his performance would have been still greater. Time and again he pulled himself out of holes, held the Red Sox with the bases full and one or two out.

Hall Hit for One Run.

Wood was relieved of his task in the second and replaced by Hall. Another run fell to the Giants as the result of two passes, a smash and some contributory negligence by Hall. Doyle was passed after Devore had been treated similarly. Snodgrass singled him to second. Here he jumped and shouted till Hall turned and rammed the ball to Yerkes in an effort to quiet the annoying clamor. The throw was wild, and before the ball could be retrieved Doyle had counted.

The assembled multitude rose on their hind legs in the second inning and watched Gardner turn first, second, third and hammer his way down the final stretch.

Home Run by Doyle.

In the first part of the sixth round Doyle brought a four-inch smile to the features of Muggsy McGraw, and increased the groom pervading the stands. Devore was up ahead of him. He permitted four wide ones to speed past and was given a base. Up came Doyle and smash went the ball with both runners streaking it around the tow path. Devore beat Doyle out by a neck, and both scored. This made the total damage done by the Giants 9, and deeming that sufficient, the side went out.

Tesreau rubbed it in with a smash in the seventh, which brought the Giants' total into two figures. Merkle was first batted and he batted a single. He swooped in on Jeff's clout, another single.

Boston Scores Two.

The Red Legs featured the seventh with valiant efforts. Speaker connected for a single. He was succeeded by Lewis, who connected twice as hard and Speaker reposed on third. Larry Doyle erred on Stahl's contribution and Speaker counted.

Wilson was sent in to get a taste of world's series atmosphere and Meyers taken out.

The Red Sox seized a tally in the eighth through the efforts of Cady, Hall and the assistance of Doyle. McGraw summoned Mathewson to warm up, but Tesreau, as he had done repeatedly, tightened in time. Merkle and Doyle met head on trying to capture Cady's puny fly. Hall made his second hit and on a long fly Cady bounded home.

Amenities of Artists.

Robert Henri, the artist, was talking at a dinner in New York about the overfished and banal world of painting of the Bourgeois type. "Leighton, the English Bourgeois, met Whistler," said Mr. Henri, "one day in Piccadilly. The two men sauntered through the Burlington Arcade talking art. 'But, my dear Whistler, you leave your work so rough, so sketchy! My dear Whistler, why do you never finish? Whistler screwed his glass into his eye and gave a fendish laugh. 'My dear Leighton,' he said, 'why do you ever begin?'"—Washington Star.

Lynn Man Got In.

A shoe salesman from Lynn was very anxious to sell to a large consumer in Cincinnati. The buyer of the Cincinnati house, who had a bizarre sense of humor, bought according to whim. When the salesman's card came in he kept it and sent out the office boy with a nickel to pay for it and break the news gently that nothing was doing. The office boy returning with another card. "What's that for," asked the capricious buyer. "He said you weren't getting your money's worth," replied the boy. "He sells two of these cards for a nickel." The Lynn man got in.

Sugar in India.

Reports from India indicate that the area of sugar cane in seven provinces this year will be 2,331,700 acres. This is an increase of ten per cent. over what it was last season. The returns from this area are put at 2,392,400 tons, or eight per cent. more than it was last year. The planted area last year was 2,114,000 acres. The united provinces contribute 52.6 per cent. of the area.

Adam's Mistake.

Eve had just come in from the wood, where she had gathered unto herself a fine new costume of autumn leaves. "How do you like my new dress, Adie?" she said, striking an attitude before him. "It's a peach," said Adam admiringly. "No, dear, it's a maple," returned Eve. It was about this time that it began to be rumored about that women have no sense of humor.—Lippincott's.

Cost of Ice for Army.

Hawaii furnishes the government with the cheapest ice that is supplied to the army—15 cents a hundred pounds—the monthly consumption being 450,000 pounds. In Chicago the army pays 25 cents, and there are posts where it goes as high as 75 cents and one dollar.

SEES GROWTH OF LUNACY

Dr. Forbes Winslow Declares There Will Be More Insane Than Sane in 30 Years.

London.—There will be more lunatics in the world than sane people three hundred years hence, was the prophecy Dr. Forbes Winslow made. This prophecy is based upon the present rate of the growth of lunacy as revealed by recent returns.

Doctor Winslow expressed strong disagreement with the statement made at the Eugenics congress by Doctor Mott to the effect that increase in lunacy was more apparent than real, and told a press representative that in making such a statement Doctor Mott apparently referred to London only. Dr. Forbes Winslow said that from his knowledge of the progress of lunacy in all parts of the world he had come to the conclusion that "we are rapidly approaching a mad world." He added: "In every part of the world civilization is advancing, and so insanity is also bound to advance. There were 36,762 registered lunatics in 1859, but 135,000 at the present day. That showed the alarming increase."

If Doctor Mott's theory is accepted, we shall wake up when it is too late to prevent a further increase. What happened to the pauper class in London, as an alleged proof against the real increase of lunacy, was very much beside the question, taken as a whole. Fifty years ago there was one lunatic in 575 of the population, but now one in 236. At that rate of progress, he said, in three hundred years' time there would be more lunatics in the world than sane people.

FRAUD OF OBESE MILKMAN

Water From Cow Puzzles Paris Inspectors Until Secret Is Discovered.

Paris.—For many weeks complaints have been received that the milk sold by a Paris dairyman was too thin; samples were taken by the police, and on each occasion the milk was found to contain a large proportion of water. Despite this, the man vehemently protested his innocence and invited the police to visit his dairy at any time to see the cows milked. Two inspectors did so, and after witnessing the milking carried away the milk, which on examination was found to contain a large proportion of water. The visits were repeated, but each time the milk which came straight from the cow was found to be too thin.

The police were much puzzled until one day Inspector Debout noticed that the milkman, who was very fat, milked with only one hand. Another curious point was that he also seemed to grow thinner as the milk pail grew fuller. Inspector Debout at once ordered the milkman to undo his waistcoat, when two indiarubber bladders and a system of piping were revealed. One bladder contain air and the other water. By pressing the air bladder the milkman caused the water to trickle out of the water bladder through a pipe into the milk pail, the operation being concealed by his artificial obesity.

TAKES UP PROSECUTOR'S BET

Husband Accepts Wager of $5 That There is an Affinity in Case.

Washington, D. C.—George Hamill, a clerk in a big department store and living in Kennelworth, D. C., who, according to his wife's charge, does not properly clothe her, is being shadowed constantly for the corporation counsel's office in consequence of his wager of $5 with Assistant Corporation Counsel George that there is not another woman in the case.

"Who is the other girl?" asked the prosecutor after the wife, Mary, had related her story of alleged neglect.

"There is none," the husband replied. "Oh, yes, there is; I'll bet $5 on it." "You're on!" snapped Hamill as he covered the bet. He said he earned only $20 a week, but Mrs. Hamill was certain that he received more.

"I am going to have you watched," said Mr. George, "and if I catch you with an affinity it will go mighty hard with you."

GIRL HAS $1,100 WEDDING

Kansas City Laborer Spends Years' Savings as Daughter Is Married.

Kansas City, Mo.—Eleven hundred dollars, the savings of a dozen years, was spent by Giuseppe Anello, a laborer in the employ of the Kansas City street department, when his daughter, Mary, 16, became the bride of Vito Campanello, 19. Fifty-nine motor cars hired by Anello whirled the wedding guests on a long tour over the city's boulevards and the festivities ended with an elaborate banquet and ball at a hall in "Little Italy." Anello said he had been saving for the event since Mary was a little girl in Sicily.

Husband Is Too "Spongy."

Fort Worth, Tex.—"A month of spooning after marriage is enough," avers Mrs. Laura Seaman in her suit for divorce filed against Arthur Seaman, to whom she was married July 10 last. "My husband hugged me with such frequency and so often in view of the public," she adds, "that his demonstrative affection became embarrassing. He showed anger when I protested."

PEACE PACT SIGNED

ITALIAN AND TURKISH DELEGATES COME TO AGREEMENT.

Turkish Forces Administer Crushing Defeat to Montenegrins at Unfortified Town of Gusinje.

London, Oct. 16.—A preliminary peace treaty was signed by the Italian and Turkish delegates at Ouchy Switzerland.

The pact provides for a continuance of the cessation of hostilities that obtained during the progress of the pourparlers. Details as to the next steps to be taken toward the re-establishment of permanent peace are lacking.

The Italian delegates delivered an ultimatum to the Turkish government last week and at the expiration of the time limit set for Turkey's reply granted a truce of grace ending last night.

Constantinople, Oct. 16.—Official dispatches from the commander of the Turkish forces operating on the Montenegrin border state that the Turks have dealt a crushing defeat to the Montenegrins at Gusinje. The enemy was completely routed and fled in disorder to the Montenegrin base at Podgoritz.

Gusinje is an unfortified town about forty miles northeast of Podgoritz. The Montenegrins are reported to have begun an advance from Tusi upon Sutar.

The Bulgarian minister has been given his passports and will leave Constantinople at once. The Greek minister is preparing to leave the city, following the announcement by the sultan's government that the ultimatum of Greece, demanding the release of Greek ships seized by Turkey, had been rejected.

NICARAGUA NOW AT PEACE

Minister Weitzel Reports Army Paid Off and Disbanded and Thinks Rebellion is Over.

Washington, Oct. 16.—American Minister Weitzel reported to the state department that 6,000 Nicaraguan troops had been paid off and discharged, the army being virtually disbanded.

He now considers Nicaragua completely at peace, and this opinion is confirmed by Rear Admiral Southerland, who advised the navy department that the work of pacification is progressing without interruption.

TO AILING WOMEN

A LITTLE SOUND ADVICE WILL HELP MANY A SUFFERER IN DIXON

No woman should consider herself healthy and well if the kidneys are weak. Poisons that pass off in the secretions when the kidneys are well, are retained in the body when the kidneys are disordered. If the kidneys and bladder become inflamed and swollen worse troubles may quickly follow. This is often the cause of bearing-down pains, lameness, backache, etc. Uric poisoning is as frequent cause of headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness, and rheumatic pains.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, remedy that has proven effective in thousands of such cases. Let a Dixon woman tell of her experience.

Mrs. F. E. Self, 1009 Highland Ave., Dixon, Ill., says: "The use of Doan's Kidney Pills has been very beneficial to me. I am glad to recommend this remedy for kidney trouble and backache."

The above statement must carry conviction to the mind of every reader. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask DISTINCTLY for DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS, the same backed by home testimony, 50c, all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

BELVIDERE HAS BIG FIRE

One Man and Twelve Horses Are Killed in Blaze Which Causes $20,000 Damage—Blacksmith Risks Life for Racer.

Belvidere, Oct. 16.—One man and twelve horses were killed and $20,000 damage was done by fire in the center of the business district. Girls in the local telephone office were driven out by smoke, firemen taking three down ladders. Schools were not in session during the afternoon, as a result of alarm over the blaze. Robert Becker, a blacksmith, perished in attempting to rescue Maurice Power's $3,000 horse, Edgewood Boy, from a box stall in the Fred K. Lane livery barns. When the flames burst through the roof Becker, who was employed in an adjoining blacksmith shop, rushed into the burning building and sought the stall in which the high-priced thoroughbred was stabled. Clouds of smoke overcame the blacksmith.

Rescue Stations' Manager Named.
Duquoin, Oct. 16.—Oscar Cartledge of Marion, former mine inspector of Franklin county, and now state inspector for the Twelfth district, has been appointed manager of the Illinois state rescue stations. Cartledge will have supervision over the three stations which were established last year for teaching first aid and mine rescue work. Each station has a superintendent and assistant superintendent and a well-equipped car in charge of two assistant superintendents which travel through the district instructing the miners in methods of preventing accidents and saving lives.

Veteran Plans His Own Funeral.
Medora, Oct. 16.—Leonard Ketchum, a veteran of the Civil war, who made all arrangements for his funeral eight months before his death, was buried. He was seventy years old. Horace Warner of Champaign, a comrade of the dead man, bore a large United States flag at the head of the funeral procession. Immediately following the hearse the soldier's aged saddle horse, riderless, followed, bearing on its back its master's army saddle, carbine, saber and scabbard and knapsack which Ketchum used during his four years' service in the Civil war.

Two Firemen Hurt in Blaze.
Chicago, Oct. 16.—Fire believed to have been started by crossed electric wires attacked a seven-story building occupied by the E. L. Mansure company, 183-85 Michigan avenue, and caused a loss of $40,000. Two firemen were cut by flying glass while fighting the fire from a fire escape on the sixth floor. They were rescued by their fellow members and taken to the Irroquois Memorial hospital.

Q It talks better than the most fluent salesman.
Q No one slams the door in its face.
Q RESULTS! It sells goods.
Q About the cost! Far less than the $100,000 salesman and does lots more work.

THE SECRET OF A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE IS THREE THINGS

A good quality of coffee, a good coffee pot and pure fresh boiling hot water. Batavia coffee porcelain coffee pot and Dixon pure fresh water are the three things. Good coffee experts tell us, that any kind of metal is an enemy to a good cup of coffee there is an acid in coffee that immediately changes the character of the coffee absolutely when it comes in contact with metal, especially so, if the metal is not kept in a very sanitary condition.

Ask to see Blanke's Sanitary Coffee Pot or have one brought up to house. The coffee never touches metal, needs no boiling, no egg to settle it. Easy to operate and economical, makes a 33c coffee drink like a 40 center. PRICE $1.00
